Dear Paul:

Your letter of May 9th just arrived with the welcome news that you would be arriving in Nashville on June 2nd. This is great. I will be returning that same day and we will be able to have the weekend together for ~~very~~ pleasant working sessions. As I indicated, Jerry Stone, the American editor for Academic Press, who is concerned with the Nutrition Foundation Monograph Series, likewise will be with us at that time.

I have written to Neige Todhunter, asking her to get for us any information that would be helpful relevant to the two items that you mentioned of interest.

You certainly are evolving a superb work, and I want us to provide, by one means or another, whatever is necessary to see that it has the same quality in terms of illustrative material and documentation that is represented in Oasis. I again apologize for my own inactivity, but as the summer comes along I will have time to get increasingly involved and active in this.

Unfortunately, I had to cancel my plans to go briefly to Tunisia, where I would have seen Carol. I will write her shortly, however, perhaps after our meeting in Nashville.

Sorry indeed that Huguette cannot come with you, but we certainly look forward to seeing you. With my warm regards,

Sincerely,

William J. Darby, M.D., Ph.D.
