

LEVEL 1 - 10 OF 99 STORIES

Copyright (c) 1989 The Christian Science Publishing Society;
The Christian Science Monitor

October 31, 1989, Tuesday

SECTION: EDITORIAL; LETTERS; Pg. 20

LENGTH: 121 words

HEADLINE: The Education Debate: Better Teachers or a Better System?

BODY:

In this age of standardized national testing, whose scores are used to judge the "success" of US education and hold educators accountable, it is refreshing to read of the Harlem school principal, Mrs. Lottie Taylor, who bucks the system and overcomes bureaucracy. Bureaucrats should realize that national, state, and district government controls make educating students difficult. They should give freer rein to the other Lottie Taylors in the nation - whose free thinking and compassionate concern produce real results, not just test results.

Janice L. Greisch, Page, Ariz.

Letters are welcome. Only a selection can be published, subject to condensation, and none acknowledged. Please address to "readers write."

2060185638

LEXIS® NEXIS® LEXIS® NEXIS®